March 8, 2011, San Francisco, CA -- SiVola LLC, an imaginative mobile application company, has today announced the recent update of iSocialize for Facebook, Twitter & SMS. Designed for use on the iPhone, iPad, and iPod Touch, this practical and fun utility allows busy users to control all of their social networking accounts – as well as their normal SMS messaging – via one centralized simple application. In a world increasingly more and more crowded with diverse digital channels of social interaction, legions of mobile consumers have taken advantage of iSocialize's ability to simplify their lives. As a result, the app has been featured in Apple's All-Time Top Paid Apps chart as well as claiming a place in their Top 10 Social Networking Apps chart for 2010. Recently updated to give users a new optimized way to enjoy photos and YouTube videos via their social networking accounts or send them via SMS, iSocialize version 4.2 is currently available for download on the Apple App Store for $0.99.

iSocialize has the power to integrate and greatly enhance user's Facebook, Twitter, e-mail, and mobile SMS accounts into one utility. Facebook and Twitter feeds can be easily accessed via iSocialize and users can share any content found on the web – from YouTube videos and images to Google maps and web pages – with their friends directly from the app. Music lovers can even share the music they are listening to via the app's embedded audio player, watch music videos, and buy songs and videos from iTunes' Top 50 charts. iSocialize retains many of the most important functions of user's Facebook and Twitter accounts. If important social developments such as a friend's birthday arrive, users will be notified and prompted to send one of the many virtual gifts conveniently available in the app itself to them. And when users are running out of words, 65 years of daily quotes and funny jokes are stored within the app and always at the user's disposal.

User-generated content such as photos taken from within the app can be easily processed and posted to numerous social networking accounts with a single tap. Furthermore users are provided with a unique counter that allows them to check their posts' popularity by showing exactly how many of their peers actually viewed them. Realizing that social networking options are increasingly experienced on the go, iSocialize automatically optimizes any visual posts for mobile view as well. The simple fact that the full breadth of today's online social networking experience can be effectively contained and controlled from within one simple and hassle-free application helps to explain why iSocialize has not only prospered on the Apple app store, but has indeed been embraced by the iOS community as a 'must have' utility that helps their mobile devices live up to their full potential.
